Colonel Gaddafi's son buys £10m Hampstead mansion

By Christopher Leake and Daniel Boffey, Mail on Sunday Reporter
Last updated at 12:17 AM on 23rd August 2009

The favourite son of Colonel Gaddafi, who played a key role in Abdelbaset Al Megrahi’s release, has bought a £10million home in one of London’s wealthiest and most prestigious suburbs.

The neo-Georgian eight-bedroom property bought by Saif al-Islam Gaddafi in a secluded road in Hampstead, North London, boasts a swimming pool, sauna room, Jacuzzi and suede-lined cinema room where he will be able to monitor world events.

The house even has an electrically operated rubbish store, which raises and lowers eight bins into the ground before a steel plate folds over to hide them discreetly.

Saif Gaddafi welcomes Al Megrahi as he arrives back in Libya

Last Thursday, Saif stepped off one of his father’s private planes at a military base in the Libyan capital Tripoli alongside Al Megrahi, who was welcomed by cheering crowds.

Al Megrahi’s release from a Scottish jail came just a fortnight after Business Secretary Lord Mandelson discussed the case with Saif during a holiday at the home of the Rothschild banking family on the Greek island of Corfu.

Yesterday, Lord Mandelson admitted he held another meeting with Saif in May.

The official meeting for trade talks took place less than three weeks after an agreement was ratified between Libya and the UK allowing prison transfers.

The Labour peer has insisted the decision to free 57-year-old Al Megrahi was made by the Scottish Government alone.

Saif, Colonel Gaddafi’s likely heir, has, like his father, become close to the Duke of York.

He has held several meetings with the Duke, and has visited both Buckingham Palace and Windsor Castle.

http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-1208434/Gaddafi-son-buys-10m-Hampstead-...
In May, Prince Andrew opened a new British Embassy in Algiers at the same time as Saif was in the Algerian capital.

A spokesman for Prince Andrew said last night that he was not aware of any discussions with Colonel Gaddafi’s son about the release of Al Megrahi.

He added: 'The Duke's visits to Libya have been focused on trade and investment.

'It is his job to develop long-term relations with key figures in the countries he visits, including Libya.'

Luxury: The £10m home in Hampstead boasts a swimming pool and sauna

The mansion also includes a home cinema room and is protected by CCTV and its own private security company

Saif’s new, air-conditioned mansion is protected by state-of-the-art CCTV cameras and his own private security team.

Neighbours in the quiet street, not far from the exclusive millionaire’s row of Bishops Avenue, revealed last night how Saif, 36, had moved into the newly-built house three weeks ago.

One neighbour said: 'I saw a big entourage in blacked-out cars arrive at the house.'
There were a few men, three women who were covered and a couple of bodyguards, big blokes. They made quite a show of turning up.

They stayed for three days and the bodyguards were on the drive the whole time. They were quite an officious lot.

One of the builders working on the development of the property opposite was told to move his van from the front of the house just in case they needed to make a quick getaway.

'I haven’t seen them since and the windows have got their slats up. I suppose Saif must have been quite busy in recent weeks.‘

Another neighbour, an Iraqi, said: ‘I think it’s great. With the Gaddafis around there won’t be many break-ins.

‘Everyone is saying Gaddafi’s cousin is going to buy the house opposite, too.

‘They can all come and live here as far as I am concerned.’

The most likely of Colonel Gaddafi’s cousins to want a home in London is Khalifa Hnaish, the dictator’s right-hand man, who has reportedly been given the task of persuading exiled Libyans back to their homeland.

Many Libyans who fled Gaddafi’s regime now live in London.

Hnaish is head of external security under the regime and is also understood to have a close relationship with Colonel Gaddafi’s sons.

Saif’s new home was bought mortgage-free by Capitana Seas Ltd, a holding company registered in the British Virgin Islands.

The property opposite was bought by Five Star Properties for £4.5million last year and is being developed by Regency Homes.

Saif’s four-level, double-fronted property has underfloor heating throughout and comes complete with two dishwashers, microwaves, as well as fridges and freezers.

A source close to the sale said last night: ‘For someone of this kind of standing, the property is ideally positioned. It is close to two golf courses and is not far from RAF Northolt, Elstree and Luton airports.

‘Mr Gaddafi will probably spend a few days at a time at his new house, but it is very well appointed and has the facilities one would expect for the price.’

Saif caused further outrage last week by claiming that Al Megrahi’s release was linked to oil and gas negotiations discussed by Tony Blair when he visited Libya as Prime Minister.

Colonel Gaddafi has added to the controversy by thanking the Queen and Gordon Brown for ‘encouraging’ the decision to free the convicted bomber.

The Libyan leader said the move to release Al Megrahi would boost relations between Libya and Britain and he thanked the Scottish authorities for their ‘humanitarian and brave’ decision and those who invited it.

Foreign Secretary David Miliband said suggestions that the release was linked to improving relations was ‘a slur on both myself and the Government’.

People:
Tony Blair, David Miliband, Gaddafi, Gordon Brown

Places:
York, London, Libya, United Kingdom, Buckingham Palace
"So much for immigration rules then. If you have the money, its open door for any one. - chris, Woodbridge, 23/8/2009"
He's not emigrating to the UK, he's bought a house like many non residents do....... "Nothing to do with being the gaffers son, I suppose they would say "but you lot have got Prince Charles". What can one say? - trevn, Abu Dhabi, UAE, 23/8/2009 10:16" Well they'd be right wouldn't they. The UK has a medieval hereditary Royal family kept in a manner most can only dream about by the taxpayer.

- Lilo Lil, Liverpool UK, 23/8/2009 14:00
Click to rate __ Rating  2

Report abuse
Just shows you what a corrupt and devious Government we have here.

- jacqui weems, Southampton, 23/8/2009 12:48
Click to rate __ Rating  42

Report abuse
Now we know why Ronnie Biggs was let out. They couldn't allow the Lockerbie Bomber out while keeping Ronnie Biggs ( also supposedly dying) in prison. He was let out to pave the way for the Libyan.

Click to rate __ Rating  36

Report abuse
Bliar and Medlesome have just penciled it in for another gut wrenching party!

Click to rate __ Rating  83

Report abuse
So much for immigration rules then. If you have the money, its open door for any one.

- chris, Woodbridge, 23/8/2009 11:07
Click to rate __ Rating  112

Report abuse
What a corrupt world this is.

- mike lewis, skipton, 23/8/2009 10:32
Click to rate __ Rating  116

Report abuse

The views expressed in the contents above are those of our users and do not necessarily reflect the views of MailOnline.
Better late than never: Obama calls Cameron and Sarkozy to draw up plans for possible international military intervention in Libya

Please help us, my good friend Tony Blair: Gaddafi's son asks for former PM's help to 'crush enemies'

The end of the road for millions of drivers: Middle East chaos could 'push petrol to £8 a gallon'

First picture of tragic seven-year-old found dead with brother and mother 'after murder-suicide'

London Stock Exchange closed as computer glitch trading to a halt

We haven't given up hope yet: British rescue team searches Christchurch building where 120 are believed dead – including whole class of Japanese language students

Woman trapped for six hours after office block collapsed in New Zealand earthquake marries fiancé who dug through rubble to find her

Council sacks the £200,000 superhead who suspended seven pupils in first two days

Five years for stealing an umbrella: Victorian criminal records show harsh punishments handed out to female convicts

How are you feeling today? Let the Government know in £2m 'well-being' survey

Good Samaritan stranger who saved pensioner, 86, having her handbag snatched went to cashpoint and handed victim £200

Former nurse 'aided British man to commit suicide online in hunt for vulnerable victims'

Lloyds reports £2.2bn profit just 12 months after posting £6.2bn LOSS

The only way IS Essex: Stars of hit TV show spark tourism boom

Discovery of nine tombs in Peru shines a new light on Inca empire's origins

Benefit fraudsters net £1m by claiming 500 people are living in ONE three-bedroom flat

Thousands of soldiers to be trained to run prisons

King pong: Male monkeys cover themselves in their own urine to attract the ladies

Long haul mites: British Airways apologises after U.S. passenger is bitten by bed bugs

'They were going to die anyway': Defence of former nurse who 'encouraged suicidal people to kill themselves in online chat rooms'

Lives put at risk as 'untrained' 999 staff don't answer hundreds of emergency calls

Young mother forced to give birth on hospital waiting room chair after being told no beds available

Illegal immigrants discovered trying to smuggle themselves into the UK in Rolls Royce body shells

Eating more than three slices of ham a day DOES increase the risk of bowel cancer

MORE HEADLINES

Council sacks the £200,000 'super head' who suspended seven pupils in first two days

At least five shot dead in the Libyan capital as Gaddafi's troops open fire on demonstrators

Mother of 16 children on £600 a week in benefits boasts she gets too much... but that won't stop baby No 17 (by sixth father)

Angelina's (very) small gesture for Brad

Church-going teacher 'kills her two children and herself' at home while husband was abroad

The end of the road for millions of drivers: Middle East chaos could 'push petrol to £8 a gallon'

Eleven fraudsters who lived life of luxury on welfare payouts... and cost Britain £1million

Woman trapped for six hours after office block collapsed in New Zealand earthquake marries fiancé who dug through rubble to find her

BA passenger bites back after mile-high bed bug attack: Airline apologises after U.S. woman publishes pictures of her bites

Please help us, my good friend Tony Blair: Gaddafi's son asks for former PM's help to 'crush enemies'

From drugs to mugs: Shocking before and after photos show how drug addiction takes devastating toll on faces of users

Victorian bad girls: Police mugshots of 19th Century women criminals revealed (along with the harsh sentences the no-nonsense justice judges handed down)

Is it real? What Todd Palin said when he heard about Sarah's faked nude photo (and why they don't talk anymore...)

Outside the rebels were jubilant. Inside the court I came face to face with Gaddafi's savage mercenaries

He's one cool cat: Jimmy's party trick gets a big thumbs-up

Now Gaddafi blames hallucinogenic pills mixed with Nescafe and bin Laden for uprisings... before ordering bloody hit on a mosque

That's one way to do it... driver beats parking warden's £110 fine after a 30-hour stand-off

Love-starved teens go missing over 'forbidden relationship'

Good Samaritan stranger who saw pensioner, 86, having her handbag snatched went to cashpoint and handed victim £200

Public sector workers could see their 'gold-plated' pensions halved

Benefit fraudsters net £1m by claiming 500 people are living in ONE three-bedroom flat

The urban fox who's enjoying the high life... at the top of UK's tallest skyscraper

How doctor saved life of Christchurch earthquake victim by amputating his legs with Swiss Army Knife

First picture of tragic seven-year-old found dead with brother and mother 'after murder-suicide'

MOST READ IN DETAIL
Gaddafi son buys £10m Hampstead mansion | Mail Online

Gaddafi son buys £10m Hampstead mansion | Mail Online

Published by Associated Newspapers Ltd

Part of the Daily Mail, The Mail on Sunday & Metro Media Group

© Associated Newspapers Ltd